Launch Portable spelr Activation Code, available in the download section, and press one of the hotkeys to begin its spell checking process. The application waits until you press a hotkey and, when it is, pops up, as if by magic, in the system tray. The application then listens for your input on the next line. When you press a hotkey, an error is highlighted in the current document. Select it, and the application shows you the correct form of the word. Alternatively, you can instead drag the error to the personal dictionary's window, which allows you to enter it or ignore the error instead. You can also set your preferred language in the 'Settings' area, under the 'General' tab. Portable spelr Serial Key Versions: Version 1.9 is the latest beta version available, which only checks the clipboard content for spelling, ignores the current document and cannot actually replace the word with the suggested one. A more polished experience is being worked on, therefore it is recommended to use the final version instead. This software is very good, i m gonna use this utility in my next project. It was very helpful in checking for spelling mistakes. What i liked the most is that it doesn't disturb your work and only give you the suggestions....@ gumppp :D Well, I tried it, and it's a good tool. Just make sure you choose the right dictionary. While the correct spelling of a few words are not in it, this is not really a problem. How it b7e8fdf5c8

How do you stop short clicking from happening on an element and only open it when you hold the click until it ends? I don't want my browser to navigate to the link if it receives a click in the first 2-3 milliseconds. I want it to stop my click and only open the link after I hold the click for a while. I am currently using: $('#my-button').click(function(event) { event.preventDefault(); }); But it still navigates me to the link. A: You can use preventDefault() on the event object: function preventDefault(e) { e.preventDefault(); } $('#my-button').click(function(e) { preventDefault(e); }); $('#my-button').click(function(e) { preventDefault(e); alert("Only after 10ms are we able to open the link."); }); Open page This code keeps the default behavior, and only prevents the default browser action after 10ms.
