Mira's Adventure Mira is a young girl, who has just found out that she has a unique ability. She just discovered that she can switch between two different worlds through a video game-like interface. Mira is determined to find out what is this ability and how to use it. She must explore the world of chroma, where everything and everybody is colorful. Mira's journey starts with a little self-discovery, a crack in the wall that separates Mira's two worlds, and a modern day adventure. Discover Mira's story, unravel its mysteries, and explore its world! Mira's Adventure features:

- 85 challenging levels of platforming action, with unique challenges
- Beautiful graphics that show off the pretty world and the vibrant areas
- Up to 4 player local split-screen multiplayer on both tablet and phone
- An intuitive and fun story mode, with special narration, messages, and music!
- Extensive achievements to unlock and a high score leaderboard
- Tap controls or use a controller

About the Game: Mira's Adventure is an Adventure game where you play as a character named Mira, who has a little bit of a problem. Mira is stuck in a digital world full of colorful and vibrant characters. Her two worlds are connected through a screen that she can switch between but unfortunately there is a crack in the wall, and she can't seem to find where it is. As she tries to find this crack, she finds that each step that she takes, she gets closer to the world that she came from but it could be far away at the same time. When she gets to a screen that she was trying to go through, she takes a detour and instead starts off in another screen. She ends up in the city of Hexa, a place that she has never been to before. Within Hexa, there are plenty of colorful beings as well as places to explore. Mira's Adventure is a 2D side-scrolling Action Platformer, that is similar to the genre of Puzzle and Platformer games. The gameplay consists of exploring and collecting crystals as Mira tries to find her way out of the world. Mira's Adventure Features: - 3 player local multi-screen multiplayer on both tablet and phone - A story mode with a narrator, messages and music - 80 challenging levels of platforming action, with unique challenges - Beautiful

An indie game that is inspired by the classic PC-Action-RPG's. The game takes place on a world called Tzevrot, a world dominated by an evil empire. The player takes control of a character named Faetas. He's a thief that was unlucky enough to get caught stealing the lost key for the King's Castle. The only way to escape the dungeon is by taking a Quest. The Quest takes the player on a journey to the areas in the Castle and the Dungeons. Once a Quest is completed the player will get a new outfit in the inn. The game will take place on 3 or more different worlds and every world will have a different story. If you are new to the game, don't feel obliged to play from start to end, you can slow down the game if you want to and explore the world on your own. The UI. It's a bit dull, but it's based on the classical gameplay style. It's mostly a browser-game. If you want to change the UI, it's easily done. The Game Play: The game starts out with the player selecting what they want to do. The choices will change the story. For example. Can you steal the key? Are you ready to spend one of your quests to get to a different world? Will you go with your "delinquent buddy" to the mines or do you want to go to an inn and sleep in the corner while your friend works to get you out of the hole you're in? Once the player has done what they want, the game will start playing. Story-wise. Once the player starts stealing the key, a quest will pop up, follow it and get rewards. Adventure-wise. After the quest is completed, the player can do anything. Explore the world, take quests or explore the world and pick quests. RPG-wise. After the Quest is done, a more detailed dialog is shown. Follow it and get rewards. What are rewards: The player can buy one of 12 ingame items, food, potions, skill points (to raise a specific skill) and a map. A weapon, armour, or a rune. The Skins: The King, Queen, Duke, Lady, Prince, Librarian, c9d1549cdd building and shot him dead, a recorded message was left. The message was sent from the Space Shuttle's motion-capture cameras at the time of the tragic landing. Once the authorities investigated the building, all tenants were relieved as there was no clue of what happened. No footprints or any sign of evidence from the people that happened. The only clue was a piece of paper on the window ledge, which read: The day will come, when our civilisation will have reached the stars, when we, the descendants of the greatest scientists and traders and the greatest heroes will live in colonies, scattered through the planets of the Cosmos. In the year 2380, you- the witness of this incident- find yourself involved in a strange incident, once again. You see a light in the sky as it crashes into the ground, but as you investigate, no one believes you. In the year 2555, you're a first-person narrative about an investigation of your own incident, but you're told to forget about this. Twenty years later, a man stops you by, asking you to investigate Building 847 in New Mexico, and you're told to forget the story you told the police. A complex story unfolds as you question the tenants, who seem to have forgotten the day that tragedy happened. The game has two different endings, and each one changes where the story goes. After an investigation, you will discover more than you expected. To see our previous games: Happy New Year:

: From the Na'vi Legacy - A Day With Riley Parks / MOMmy Productions Join Vixda and I for a day with Riley Parks for book signing, talk radio, and really cool kids questions! What is Dragon's Passage about? Dragon's Passage is the first book in the series that take place on Pandora about a young girl who is born and raised as a Na'vi and living in Earth since she was a child. It's challenging enough that you have to know the Na'vi language, and it introduces the different aspects of the Na'vi culture. The heroine is named Brunt, and she is the daughter of the chief of the village of the Aya'cultra. The events of the book happen when Brunt is 17 and the whole village is attacked by a group of humans who want to make war with the Na'vi. Brunt is sent to live with another Aya'cultra, the woman who raised her and takes her as her twin sister. How did you come across this book? Do you browse all the books in bookstores? Do you go to Amazon, Curia or other online libraries? Absolutely! I used to browse bookstores until one day I checked my husband's cupboard (yeah, we weren't fooling around, it's a small room with a small kitchen in it). He had an ancient paperback for Na'vi language in front of him and I read the cover, the story, the characters, etc. I then went on Amazon and bought the book. I only checked out the first one (Daughters of Death) from the library because I thought I'd definitely get another one. There is a lot more to read and it's a really easy read for anyone who's interested in Pandora. This is the first time you have come across the Na'vi? Can you describe their look? What is your reaction when reading them? Do you see any comparison with other tribes? The Na'vi have bright greenish skin and their hair and eyebrows are always very curled and waved. All their clothing are white and it hangs freely like ribbons or flowing clouds, depending of the shape of the individual. The dress cuts when the individual is pregnant and also when she is giving birth to a baby. The Na'vi language is the most gorgeous language I've ever read. It's not actually an alphabet, but I think it's backdrop of a couple of charming cast of characters, and the controversial issues around the world over lake Taupo, Top of the Lake is a story as radical and unique as the lake it tells. How did an iconic structure on the edge of the North Island come to be the source of an environmental, and public health disaster? How do politics and the media shape perceptions of an entire region of New Zealand? What is the environmental legacy of the original Hydro-Taupo Corporation? In an urban setting, fronted by an array of luxury homes, a team of engineers takes on the challenge to upgrade one of the world's most celebrated lakes - the first step in restoring its status as a Pacific heartland for wildlife and recreation. What they discover is a tale of disputes, corruption and conflict that will shock New Zealanders and cast a long shadow over the nation's future. The title of the film is taken from the name of a popular lake holiday on New Zealand's North Island, the same name as the film. It is the largest lake in the country's North Island and is situated at the head of the Taupo Volcanic Zone. In the film, the water is literally at the top of the world, located next to white, vertical mountains that overlook the cities of Hamilton and Auckland. The title comes from the slogan of the original hydro-electric company, the Hydro-Taupo Corporation, that operated the region's hydro-electric power stations between 1962 and 1991. Filmed with acclaimed filmmaker Jane Campion (The Piano, Bright Star, Top of the Lake), this is a bold, artistic documentary that takes a deep dive into the true "Top of the Lake".
